Well done for persevering through new learning in morning maths this week!
Keep it up! 😊

Dear Parents,

Hello everybody! I hope that you had a great week. In the last couple of weeks in Templar, we have been looking at Living things and their habitats. So far, we have explored plants and mammals. We dissected some plants and looked carefully at real life lilies and how each sections plays a part in plant reproduction. This week, we classified some animals and put them in categories of our choice. We also looked at different ways that Scientist categorise living things and we will be having a go at creating classification charts like real life scientists.

We had a wonderful visit from Planet Action a couple of weeks ago, who taught us all the different changes that we can make in order to make our world more sustainable. We looked at habitats in our own daily lives that can be altered in order to help the environment. In the process, we created postcards for future selves by visualising what a better world would look like by discussing statements, such as: what I hope to see in 2072, what I hope will not be available in 2072, what materials people can use in 2072. We created postcards for our future selves.

In English, we have been writing an Instruction text about how to created a goat craft. The children thought about verbs and adverbials that they needed to use in order to make their instructions clear and consise. Using our knowledge of vocabaly, we consciously chose our words and made sure that each sentence was relevant and coherent before continuing.

The year 6 children will be completing their SATs in the second week of May. To help them feel even more confident about their learning, we are continuing Morning Maths club three times a week- Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays. Please also ensure that the children are practising their readng and times tables at home to help increase their speed and fluency.

Kind regards
Mrs Babbage
